

Xinjiang facing worst kind of ethnic genocide: activist

ANI, 23 Feb 2021

“Xinjiang [China], February 23 (ANI): The Xinjiang autonomous region is facing the worst kind of cultural and ethnic genocide at the hands of the Chinese Communist Party (CCP), said an Uyghur activist.”

In an article for the Jerusalem Post, Dr Burhan Ulu-yol, an associate professor at the Istanbul Sabahattin Zaim University and an Uyghur activist, said that the Chinese government refuses to categorise Uyghurs as an indigenous population and describe Uyghurs as a regional minority.

"The Xinjiang autonomous region in China is facing the worst kind of cultural and ethnic genocide. There is a long history of dissonance between the indigenous ethnic Uyghur and Chinese authorities... Evidence suggests that China is systematically targeting Uighur Muslims through a state-planned birth-control process," the activist wrote.

"Women survivors from these camps say they were beaten, raped and given mysterious injections. A study of concentration-camp survivors suggest that Chinese authorities have adopted brutal methods to stop new Uyghur births. Forced pregnancy checks, medications that stop menstruation, forced abortions, sterilizations, IUDs, and unidentified injections are given to Uighur women by Chinese officials," Ulu-yol added.

He called for a strong international response to push back China's attack on human dignity. US President Joe Biden reaffirmed his commitment to counter China on human-rights abuses and raised the issue during his first phone call as president with Chinese President Xi Jinping. He said, "This is a sign of hope for the Uighur movement." "The Uyghur movement has received attention and support from Western governments, which has internationalized the issue. Support from different communities, organizations and individuals has improved the movement," the activist said.

He pointed out that Since 1949, China has used a policy of racial discrimination, mass killings and imprisonment under the pretext of national security. China, meanwhile, politicizes its investments and mutual cooperation with other countries to get its political goals fulfilled.

"It seems as if China bought the silence of many countries by using Chinese money. Countries need to open their diplomatic gates so that the Chinese state evolves a political architecture that will allow the Uyghurs to maintain their identity and peacefully co-exist," the associate professor pointed out.

UK Foreign Minister Dominic Raab called on the UN Human Rights Council on Monday to address the human rights violations in China stating that the international body does not "consistently" pinpoint areas of the prevalence of the most pressing human rights issues.

"We see almost daily reports now that shine a new light on China's systematic human rights violations perpetrated against Uyghur Muslims and other minorities in Xinjiang. The situation in Xinjiang is beyond the pale. The reported abuses - which include torture, forced labour and forced sterilisation of women - are extreme and they are extensive," he said at the 46th Session of the UN Human Rights Council, of which China and Russia are both members.

China has been rebuked globally for cracking down on Uyghur Muslims by sending them to mass detention camps, interfering in their religious activities and sending members of the community to undergo some form of forcible re-education or indoctrination. Beijing, on the other hand, has vehemently denied that it is engaged in human rights abuses against the Uyghurs in Xinjiang while reports from journalists, NGOs and former detainees have surfaced, highlighting the Chinese Communist Party's brutal crackdown on the ethnic community, according to a report.

The US Department of State under then-Secretary of State Mike Pompeo called the crackdown on Uyghurs as 'genocide'. (ANI)

A vote is not enough to combat Chinese atrocities against Uyghurs

As a young Muslim Canadian woman, I am saddened as I watch Canada's slow action on the Uyghur crisis in Xinjian, China. I am not here to politicize this issue, but it is evident that the crimes occurring against the Muslim minority group is not something our country should stand idly by and watch.

There are reported to be more than a million Uyghur Muslims placed in re-education camps. Women are being gang raped. Multiple sources are drawing attention to this. One BBC article even suggested that Chinese men paid a fee to access the prettiest inmates at the camp.

I am horrified by the things I am reading. The only thing I know how to do now is draw attention to this by using my words.

My family came to Canada in 1972 when South Asians were being expelled from East Africa. Yes, we were the lucky ones who made it out safely and were able to create a home here. The Uyghurs have no such options. They have no way to make it out.

While we live in a peaceful and prosperous society, my fellow Muslims are being taken from their homes and shipped to prison camps where they are coerced to give up their faith and erase their culture. While we enjoy our safety and freedom, my fellow Muslims are facing forced sterilization and mass surveillance. Yes, China is a mighty world power and there are many potential economic consequences if Canada speaks up. China has already punished Canada for other disputes by cutting off trade with our agriculture industries and holding hostage two Canadian citizens. There is a risk that China will make it even worse and further punish Canadian companies and even citizens.

But speak up we must. We cannot stand by and say nothing.

Canada has a long history of positive diplomatic and trading relationships with China. We are all better off when we peacefully speak, visit and trade with one another. We all benefit from working together to advance our economies and address big global challenges like climate change.

This is not that China. This is a side of China that it wants the world to ignore. This is a China that takes hostages and uses re-education camps.

We need to use this moment and rise to the occasion. We need to send the message that people who are far away and out of sight will not be forgotten. We need to work toward bringing other countries together in support of the Uyghur Muslims and collectively take actions that will make China end its coercive practices.

Canada is renowned globally as a country that not only welcomes grateful refugees like my family, but also speaks up for vulnerable populations everywhere. When we see injustice, we say so. Canada, let us call out this injustice today.

“Where are my daughters?”

*Pain and heartburn for an Uyghur father
The Uyghur “Omar Faruk” questions the Chinese authorities about the location of his two daughters, asking: “Where are my daughters?”*

As he painfully said:

“China is holding two daughters who have Turkish nationality.

I have not heard their voice since (1710 days).

What would you do if your children were in these situations? If you were in my place?
